Biographical Information

Arthur Whitefield Spalding (spelled "Spaulding" with a "u" until 1916) was closely connected with the Seventh-day Adventist church throughout his life. His parents joined the church in the year he was born (1877). Just before his eleventh birthday, his family moved to Battle Creek where he worked for several church leaders. At the age of 14, he was secretary to R. M. Kilgore and later secretary to J. H. and W. K. Kellogg at Battle Creek Sanitarium, and secretary to President E. A. Sutherland at Battle Creek College.

As an educator, Arthur Spalding headed the English Department and supervised small fruit farming at Emmanuel Missionary College from 1903 to 1906. He taught in and directed elementary and secondary schools in Wisconsin and the southern states of the United States. In 1910 he co-founded Fletcher Institute in North Carolina.

A writer throughout his life, he produced his first book, A Man of Valor, while teaching at Emmanuel Missionary College. As secretary to Ellen White in 1913, he wrote, Men of the Mountain, while under her employ. He contributed many articles for church publications and books familiar to Adventist readers such as Golden Treasury of Bible Stories and Origin and History of Seventh-day Adventists.

From 1922 to 1941, Spalding served as founder and full-time secretary of the Home Commission of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, writing and lecturing extensively on the home. His wife Maud Wolcott Spalding, whom he had married in 1899, developed programs and material for preschool children, especially in the area of nature study. See Babes and Cradles (Center for Adventist Research PZ8.3 .S773B3) and boxes 11 and 12 of this collection.

Spalding died December 15, 1953, near Collegedale, Tennessee. See, A Fire in My Bones (Center for Adventist Research BX6158.9 .S68M3) for a biography of Spalding written by his children.

Scope

The Arthur Whitefield Spalding Papers were placed in the Adventist Heritage Center in the James White Library, Andrews University, in June 1960 by Arthur Spalding's children--Ronald W. Spalding, M.D., and Elizabeth Spalding McFadden of Gobles, Michigan. The papers contain correspondence, manuscripts, and articles collected by Arthur Spalding. Of particular interest are materials dealing with the Seventh-day Adventist General Conference Home Commission (which Spalding founded and directed from 1922 to 1941) and Spalding's correspondence dealing with the writing of Origin and History of Seventh-day Adventists.

Please note the existence of a second Spalding Papers collection in the Center for Adventist Research. They do overlap in coverage but came from different sources so were not merged.

Arrangement

The current arrangement was done by the Adventist Heritage Center at the time it was processed for public use. At some point after processing additional materials came to the Center. This material was integrated in 2019 and the register revised. See the Table of Contents for an overview of the arrangement.
Extent

12 boxes [4.8 linear feet]

The Spalding Collection was donated to Andrews University by Ronald W. Spalding and Elizabeth V. McFadden on June 2, 1976. Some elements of the collection were donated in June 1960. It is unknown when the newer parts were added.
